

These and other titles and quotations from different newspaper articles gave us the picture of Bitterfeld.

At the time of the reunification of Germany in 1989 and the following years the students of our group were still too young to have an own picture of this situation nor could they reflect and understand it. So our picture of Bitterfeld was a picture which our parents, relatives and friends gave us. However it is known to everybody in our group that the level of unemployment in this region belongs to the highest in Germany, the rate of emigration is nearly as high. So we went to Bitterfeld with the imagination of a catastrophic region and a ghostly city.
